Three NLRB Officials Resign Posts

FAILURE TO KEEP MADDEN HAS RESULTS

Shake-up In Labor Board to Follow Approval of New Chairman Millis.

HOUSE CLEANING

Effort to Place Ex-chief on Court of Claims Has Opposition.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A major shakeup in the turbulent National Labor Relations Board started today after three key officials resigned in protest against President Roosevelt's action in naming a new member to the board.

The shakeup, which will assume proportions of a general housecleaning, began when the President failed to reappoint J. Warren Madden, chairman of the board, to another term. Instead, Mr. Roosevelt named Dr. Harry A. Millis, Chicago economist and professor, to the board and appointed Madden to the U. S. court of claims.

The nominations of both Millis and Madden to their new posts were sent to the senate yesterday. Millis was expected to be speedily confirmed, probably next week. But a fight loomed over putting Madden on the claims court, a job that will pay him $12,500 a year in contrast to the $10,000 he received on the labor board.

As soon as the nominations were made three NLRB key officials resigned. They are Nathan Witt, secretary of the board, Thomas Emerson, associate general counsel and Alexander B. Hawes, chief administrative examiner.

Witt, Emerson and Hawes appeared merely to be beating the executioner. It had been a foregone conclusion that they would be forced to quit if Madden was not reappointed. All said in their letters of resignation that they were stepping out because the president had failed to reappoint Madden. Both Witt and Madden

ACTS ON BALLOTS

Board Asks Prosecutor to Probe Circulation of Official Copies.

Arliss F. Porter, clerk of the Richland county election board for the past 10 years, submitted his resignation to the board at a meeting late yesterday. The board accepted it and it became effective immediately.

Phillip Wolfe, former Mansfield service-safety director, was endorsed as Porter's succesor last night by the county Republican executive committee. The election board was expected to name him clerk at a meeting this afternoon. The position pays $105 monthly.

The board asked Prosecutor G. W. Marriott to investigate the circulation of copies of official party ballots as samples in behalf of Howard Wenning for clerk of courts before the Nov. 5 election.

W. H. Hipp, Wenning's father-in-law, said he obtained the ballots from an employe of the Mansfield printing firm that printed the county's ballots and hired a man to distribute them for Wenning. He said, however, that he didn't realize they were illegal.

Wenning, who was elected county clerk, contended that he knew nothing about the alleged sample ballots. Election board officials said use of the ballots was a violation of the state election laws.

Election officials said the prosecutor may submit the case to the county grand jury which meets in two weeks if he finds evidence to warrant it. Marriott was out of the city today and could not be reached for comment.

Although Porter gave no reason for resigning as election board clerk in his letter to the board, he said today that his work with the board and as an officer of Masonic organizations in the city had been too strenuous.

"I don't offer ill health as an excuse, but I felt that I couldn't hold up under the pressure of the

83 Years 'Young', Gets 83 Red Roses

Charles F. Ackerman, president of the Mansfield Saving and Trust National bank, is 83 years "young" today. As a reminder of the day, employes of the bank followed their annual custom and sent him one red rose for every year of his life. He is a little tired today—but not from the weight of his years. Yesterday he drove about 200 miles round trip on a hunting expedition, tramped over miles of fields with four younger men and they all returned with the limit in birds and almost the limit in rabbits. He is shown above with the 83 roses which are in the bank lobby.

HUNTERS FIND FROZEN BODY

Unidentified Man Found In Woods Hanging From Tree Near Willard.

WILLARD — Hanging from the limb of a tree by a few strands of clothesline rope, the frozen body of an unidentified man was found in a woods three miles west of here by hunters yesterday afternoon.

According to Huron County Coroner J. D. Bradish, who returned a verdict of suicide by hanging, the man had been dead about two days.

The pockets of his scanty, cotton clothing were empty, the coroner said. No money, papers, or identifiing marks could be found on the garments.

Yesterday afternoon and early this morning, residents of Willard and vicinty visited the Secor funeral home where the body was taken in an attempt to identify the man, but at noon today he still remained unknown.

Fingerprints werg taken yesterday by Coroner Bradish and sent to Washington in an attempt to establish identity. An official report from Washington had not been received at noon today.

The dead man, according to a report issued by the coroner's office, is apparently about 55 years old, weighs 160 pounds, is five feet, 11 inches tall, and has thin grey hair.

Besides cotton overalls, he was wearing a sweater and a cap when hunters found the body.

CONVICTED

Manslaughter Term Awaits Shreve Resident.

WOOSTER —(INS)— James L. Musser, 66, of nearby Shreve today prepared to start a one-to-20-year manslaughter sentence in Ohio pentitentiary for the killing of his son-in-law, Darwin Davenport, July 28.

Musser was found guilty of manslaughter by Judge Walter J. Mougey, who heard the case when Musser waived a jury trial. Musser contended he shot Davenport with a shotgun during a family fight, but only in self defense, after his son-in-law had lunged at him.

Judge Mougey deliberated half an hour after hearing the three and one-half days' testimony presented in the case.

ROME —(INS)— Virginio Gayda, press spokesman for Premier Mussolini, today published a bitter attack against the American press for its reports of the British naval air arm attack on the Italian naval base at Taranto.

DELAY METERS

Crafton Says Paid Parking Will Start Wednesday.

Motorists who plan to park their cars in meter zones on downtown streets next week can pocket their pennies and nickels until Wednesday or Thursday, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced today.

The director said he had been notified by the Michaels Art Bronze company that there has been a delay in shipping the new meters and that it would be the first of next week before installation of the devices would be started.

Crafton said he was told by representatives of the company that 414 meters would be shipped here by truck Monday and that installation would probably start Tuesday. He said it would take only about a day to complete the installation.

The company had said earlier this week that the meters were ready and would be installed over the week-end for operation on Monday.

Draft Questionnaires Sent to 120 In County

Richland's Three Boards Take First Steps to Fill Initial Quota for Selective Service Training.

Questionnaires had been mailed today to 120 of the 9,400 Richland county men who registered under the selective service law as the three county draft boards took the first step to fill their quota of nine men by Nov. 26.

Three advisory boards, one for each draft board in the county, set up temporary headquarters today to help registrants fill out their questionnaires which must be returned to the draft boards within five days.

Advisory board No. 3, which serves all Richland county outside Mansfield and Madison township, established headquarters in the appeals court room on the third floor of the courthouse. That board, however, was expected to name four or five deputies in the larger towns in the county for the convenience of men farthest from Mansfield.

Advisory board No. 1, serving the first four wards in Mansfield, can be contacted temporarily at the draft board headquarters in the Memorial building, while the advisory board for the No. 2 district in Mansfield and Madison township will have headquarters on the third floor of the City building.

Draft officials pointed out that the questionnaires must be filled out in ink. Should a registrant need advice in making out the report, he can obtain help free from his advisory board.

Draft boards 1 and 2 expected to get their first quota of six men, three each, from more than 20 volunteers. The boards will meet Monday or Tuesday to classify the volunteers from the information contained in their answers to the questionnaires.

The No. 3 board has only one volunteer and must draft its quota of three men from the registration lists.

The 1 and 3 boards mailed out 50 questionnaires each today. No. 2 board mailed 20 and prepared to send out more immediately.

Men called from Richland county to fill the first quota will report at Ft. Hayes, Columbus, about noon, Nov. 26. The second draft call, which will take 10 times as many men, will be issued on or after Jan. 2, 1941.

BLASTS OVER

Weatherman Predicts Rise In Temperature and Snow.

Ohio's first taste of wintry blasts is likely to disappear over the week-end, weather bureau officials at Columbus said today. Cloudy skies and snow flurries, with slowly rising temperatures are forecast for today.

Despite temperatures which dipped below the 20 mark in some parts of the state, higher temperatures are predicted for tomorrow, with warmer air moving in from the west. Southern Ohio was covered with from two to six inches of snow this morning.

The state highway department reported that all slippery spots on highways had been sanded or cindered and that roads are safe to travel. Snow has been cleared off the highways in the southern and eastern counties, it reported.

LEVY PASSES

HAMILTON—(AP)—Passage of a half-mill levy for operating expenses of the Middletown hospital appeared assured yesterday with a recount of votes in 12 Middletown precincts. The previous count showed the levy defeated by about 70 votes but the recount showed a margain of 32 above the required 65 per cent majority.

4 HUNTERS DIE AT CROSSING

Train Fatalities Boost Ohio Toll to Eight; Richland Free of Accidents.

Four hunters killed in a grade crossing accident early today boosted Ohio's 1940 rabbit-pheasant season death toll to eight before the season was 24 hours old.

While thousands took to the snow-covered fields in Richland county at noon yesterday not a single hunting accident was reported in this area.

Accidental shootings were fatal to two in other parts of the state, however, while two others died of heart attacks in the fields.

Four Clevelanders were instantly killed about 6 a. m. today when their automobile was struck by a fast westbound passenger train on route 67 at Republic, nine miles east of Tiffin.

The victims were Robert G. Ewell, Joseph L. Ryans, jr., both of Lakewood; Fred W. Geisler, Euclid, and James McMyler of East Cleveland.

Residents of the village said they believed the men failed to see the approaching train.

The season was barely an hour underway yesterday when Malcolm O. Fields of Indianapolis, hunting with Lloyd Logan on his

Spain Cancels Order Barring American Press

MADRID —(U.P.)— The Spanish government announced today that orders forbidding American correspondents in Spain to operate after next Monday had been cancelled.

The announcement was made after United States Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell had conferred with foreign office officials.

After the conference, the press bureau of the ministry of the government, equivalent to the ministry of interior, said: "The incident involving a suspension order against American correspondents has been totally ended."

Thinking the United States had refused permission for a correspondent of E. F. E., the official Spanish news agency, to enter the United States, Spain yesterday ordered that effective Monday American correspondents in Spain were to turn in their press cards and cease operations.

The ban was to apply against the Associated Press, United Press International News Service, New York Times and Chicago Tribune.

REACHES PORT

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The tanker Crudoil arrived here last night damaged only slightly and with a full crew aboard after being buffeted by a storm on Lake Michigan five days ago.

Cargo Vessels Attempt to Run Foe's Blockade

One Limps Back to Tampico Port While Another Is Seen Ablaze at Sea; British and German Warships Reported In Caribbean.

(By Associated Press)

TAMPICO, Mexico—One of four German cargo vessels which sailed out into the stormy Gulf of Mexico limped back to its anchorage today, another apparently was afire and running lights of the two others were reported visible far off shore.

Vicente Villasana, Tampico editor, identified the ship returned to its berth as the Orinoco, 9,660-tonner, after it had signalled it was having engine trouble.

Villasana said the burning ship apparently was the Phrygia, of 4,137 tons, which stood some 15 miles to sea, and all but destroyed by the flames. No indication of the fate of the crew was known.

The running lights of the Rhein, 6,031 tons, and the Idarwald, 5,033 tons, were apparently visible at the horizon, Villasana said.

He said it was possible one of the ships was afire and that "enemy" warships (presumably British) had caused the crew to set their vessel afire. Villasana said his information indicated, however, that the two German vessels were still trying to make their way to open sea, heading for an European port.

The Phrygia apparently was drifting with the strong south wind and at 6 a. m. was reported still afire.

The Orinoco carried a crew of 200, the other vessels 40 men each.

The four ships had been moored here since outbrak of the European war.

As the tugboat Sabalo was getting up steam to go to assistance of the burning ship, the Orinoco signalled it had machinery trouble. The Sabalo then took the Orinoco in tow.

The ships obtained clearance papers late yesterday, three of them giving the Canary islands as their destination, and the fourth, Vigo, Spain.

Shipping circles speculated that they might be planning to keep a rendezvous with a German war vessel.

Reports of German surface warships operating in Caribbean waters have been prevalent for some time.

(Shipping circles in New York heard unconfirmed reports last night that the 2,297-ton German freighter Helgoland, which slipped out of Barranquila, Colombia, Oct. 28, had been sunk by a British warship in the Caribbean.)

First indications that the German ships might leave here was seen last week when crew members were called aboard and they began taking on large stores of provisions.

Other German ships have dared the British blockade from Mexican ports.

The Columbus, 32,581 tons, left Vera Cruz last December but was overtaken by a British destroyer. Her crew scuttled her 400 miles off the United States Atlantic coast and a U. S. cruiser rescued the crew of 578 men.

The fate of the German freighter Havelland, which left Manzanillo June 27, still is in doubt.

Italians Claim Success at Sea

ROME—(AP)—Il Giornale D'Italia declared today that an Italian submarine in the Atlantic had sunk a former United States destroyer which was one of 50 traded to the British for naval and air bases.

The vessel was the "enemy destroyer" referred to by the

DESTRUCTION: London Hit By War's Heaviest Air Raid

(By United Press)

LONDON—An estimated 500 air raiders spread new destruction in London during the night.

Places bombed included seven hospitals, three hotels, two convents, two motion picture theaters, a block of apartments and a school.

Most persons agreed that it was the heaviest attack on London since the start of aerial warfare; comparable, although spread over a much larger area, to the devastating "revenge" raid on Coventry Thursday night.

Emergin from shelters this morning, Londoners found no vital services affected and the government said no military objectives had been hit, because of a fierce anti-aircraft barrage that kept the raiders extremely high. There were new scenes of desolation, however, in all parts of the city.

It was feared that 11 persons were killed when a high explosive bomb exploded near a Roman Catholic church. The church was damaged.

An air raid protection worker said he saw 80 raiders in a group and that it was "the worst night I ever experienced."

RETREAT: Italians Set Fire To Koritza Before Evacuation

BULLETIN

ROME—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia declared today that Germany and Italy are ready to take military action in France's African territory, particularly in west Africa, to prevent the British from gaining control through De Gaulle forces.

(By United Press)

ATHENS, Greece—Italians have set fire to Koritza, their main base in southern Albania, and are evacuating, Greek dispatches from the front said today.

Reports from Greek outposts in the mountains, where the Greek artillery has been firing into Koritza, for a week, said the flames from the burning town were illuminating the mountain-sides over a wide area.

Greek general headquarters here announced that Italian planes last night bombed Bitolj (Monastir), Jugoslav frontier town in Jugoslavia. Bitolj has been bombed several times—twice in one day during the early phase of Italo-Greek hostilities.

Reports from the other end of the frontier said Greek artillery was laying down a heavy barrage on Konitza, a town of 2,000 in the Pindus mountains, 12 miles inside the frontier. Konitza is one of the few places where Italians still have a foothold on Greek soil.

Greek military quarters here, on the basis of latest reports from the front, said that Koritza soon would be in their hands.

They said that the Greeks had occupied mountain tops throughout the Morova range and the

New Features, Pictures Tomorrow

In the days of the Oklahoma land grants no homesteader rushed across the border at the stated hour to stake out his claim with more vigor than Richland county hunters took to the fields with hound and gun at noon Friday. Pictures and story in the Sunday edition tell you about Richland county's great "game rush."

OFF-STAGE

All across the nation people are hearing about the Louis Bromfield-George Hawkins play which the Community Players will present in its premiere Dec. 2. Tomorrow's edition interviews one of the players who will make her first stage appearance in a major role in the comedy. It's turning out to be quite an experience, as you'll see.

Out on the fringe of Mifflin lake lives a lonely man who for seven years has trained a little brown and white dog until today it can do tricks that appear uncanny. The story of dog and master goes back through three years on the stage to the time the puppy was born in an Elyria garage.

ROUND-UP

The Do You Remember series takes you to the great Altman-Taylor fire and the Let's Go to School feature visits Brinkerhoff.

Another feature brings you the "case history" of the rehabilitation of a family on relief.

What about Hawaii's statehood? There's a story on that, too, along with all the regular Sunday syndicated features and an entertaining short story.

Sports, society, and suburban news round out an edition led off with the latest news available in Mansfield on the war and national defense.

Lewis, Hillman Reach Agreement Averting CIO Split

MURRAY PICKED AS NEW UNION CONGRESS HEAD

Leaders Predict Unity For Labor Organization as Convention Result.

(By United Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Congress of Industrial Organizations leaders believed today that a split in the congress had been averted.

CIO President John L. Lewis and Vice President Sidney Hillman, long at odds as leaders of opposing factions, held a 90-minute conference unexpectedly last night and emerged from it non-committal but smiling.

Confidants of both believed they had ironed out some of their differences, and predicted confidently that there would be unity in the CIO when it winds up its convention next week.

Both are about to step down from CIO leadership—Lewis because of his pledge to resign because of President Roosevelt's re-election; Hillman because he holds a federal office, being a defense commissioner. They have agreed upon Phillip Murray, tall, taciturn leader of the steel workers organizing committee and vice president of the United Mine Workers Union, as Lewis' successor.

Until their significant meeting last night, there had been major differences between Lewis and Hillman on political and economic questions.

Hillman's union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, decided to present to the CIO convention which begins Monday, resolutions demanding that Communists, Nazis and Fascists be barred from paid CIO offices or jobs; calling for the immediate resumption of peace negotiations with the American Federation of Labor; proposing that the executive committee receive the power of veto upon the acts and appointments of CIO president.

Lewis was aware of these resolutions when he and Hillman met last night. It had been expected that they would stir serious dissension because the labor peace and president-restraining resolutions apparently were aimed at Lewis, and the anti-Communist amendment would hit the "left wing" CIO unions which support Lewis.

Hillman had absented himself from both the morning and afternoon sessions of the CIO executive board yesterday. He may attend today's session, called for 4 p. m.

Disagreement of the Lewis-Hillman factions is to go before the session. Lewis' supporters have protested the seating of pro-New Deal delegates at the New York state industrial union council meeting at Rochester, N. Y., this fall, and a CIO subcommittee headed by Murray, was appointed yesterday to try for an amicable settlement.

Careers Blamed for Break-Up of Myrna's Romance

HOLLYWOOD —(U.P.)— Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow, jr., have separated, and Miss Loy's attorney said today that she had instructed him to file divorce proceedings at "an early date."

Miss Loy announced the estrangement from a nearby resort, where she is recuperating from an attack of influenza. Confirming it, Hornblow, a producer, said she still is "the loveliest woman in the world." He said their careers were responsible for the separation.

"It is a decision we reluctantly reached after almost a year of effort on Arthur's part and mine to arrange a way of life that could find happiness for us both," said the actress.

"Now, at last, it appears that a separation between us is the only course and there is no hope of reconciliation."

Hornblow accepted the announcement with "great sadness."

After meeting on a film set and a courtship of three years they were married at Ensenada, Lower California, on June 27, 1936.

The marriage was the first for the actress and the second for Hornblow.

Union Plans Test Case In Aircraft Strike

Fellow workers of Jack Berger, assistant secretary of the Richland County Auto club, were laying bets today that Berger was one of the rabbit hunters who came back empty-handed after the first day's hunt yesterday. After two full days of feverish preparation, Berger left the Auto club offices early yesterday morning for Kelley's Island, where he planned to bag a few rabbits on opening day. When he departed loaded down with equipment, workers in the office discovered that Berger had forgotten his stock of shells. His colleagues were wondering today if they sell shells on the island.

County officials almost decided to close up shop today when contractors building the courthouse elevator shaft put a compressed air drill into service to cut through the thick floors and walls of the building. Even with office doors shut and the building operations housed in a dust-proof shaft, the drill shook the building and made it difficult to hear in the offices. County Commissioner C. L. Mitchell said the installation probably would require nearly three months, but the drilling is expected to be completed in a few days.

Patients at the Richland County Tuberculosis Sanatorium have found a way to put in some of their spare time. The first edition of the T. B. Snooper, a bi-monthly publication edited by staff members and the patients made its appearance today. A seven-page mimeographed "newspaper," it deals with spot news and stories concerning patients at the institution. The first edition is dedicated to the county commissioners, to whom, the story says, "goes a large part of the credit" for establishing the sanatorium. The paper was printed by the health department.

QUESTION FOUR AT SPRINGFIELD

No New Clues Uncovered In Bludgeon Slayings at Industrial Plant.

SPRINGFIELD—(U.P.)—Questioning of four employes who were in the National Supply company engine factory when two other workers were murdered early Sunday failed today to reveal any new information about the bludgeon deaths of Jesse E. Ray, 51, and Fred A. Frior, 44.

Latest to be questioned and released were Ezra Stewart, a fireman, and Joseph Shinn, a crane operator.

Despite the meagerness of evidence uncovered so far, Prosecutor Jerome A. Nevius was confident the mystery would be unveiled.

"We are not up against a stone wall but it is going to take lots and lots of work," he asserted.

The "break" might possibly come today or maybe not for a week or longer, Nevius said.

He still clings to a theory that someone with a personal grudge against at least one of the slain men did the killings.

Chester Wilhams, 44, engineer who reported discovery of Frior's battered body last Sunday, was cross-examined for nine and one-half hours yesterday before being released to assume his duties at the plant last night. He had been questioned three times previously.

Silas McCauley, 41, night watchman, who was among four workers in the plant when the bodies were found, was questioned for four hours yesterday. Williams was present part of the time when McCauley was queried.

National Supply officials posted extra guards at night in the factory to guard against recurrence of the slayings in the event the killer was a homicidal maniac.

SISTER STUFF DECLARED OUT

Court Rules Fighter Must Admit He's Married Man.

CHICAGO—(AP)—By order of the court, Irving Kiehn, 32, a prize fighter, must cease introducing his wife as his sister.

The wife, Harriet, 25, complained to Judge Rudolph Desort that she was tired of being represented as a sister.

Kiehn explained the sister angle by saying that he goes to social functions where it is a handicap to be known as a married man.

ARGENTINITA THRILLS CROWD IN FIRST CIVIC MUSIC PROGRAM

From the dusty plains and sunny mountain villages of old Spain, Argentinita and her Spanish ensemble last night brought a program of authentic native dances and music to the stage of Senior high school auditorium in the first of four Civic Music association concerts to be presented in Mansfield this season.

A capacity crowd that overflowed into extra chairs in both orchestra pit and balcony had packed the auditorium before the curtain parted at 8:15 on the first lively "Seguidillas" danced by Pilar Lopez and Federico Rey to music of the famed Spanish composer Albeniz.

Throughout the entire program, colorful costumes reflecting the fire and grace of the Spanish provinces from Asturias to Malaga remained a highligth of every number.

To Argentinita herself, the audience accorded warmest applause for the Granados Dance IX in which she first displayed her exceptional technique with castanets and for her witty interpretation of the Mazurka as a recollection of Madrid in the Gay Ninties. Her full-skirted costume in the latter number was particularly striking.

There was plenty of sly humor overtoning many of the dances—particularly the presentation by Argentinita and senor Rey of selections from Manuel de Falla's popular ballet "The Three-Cornered Hat," and "Segovianos" and "Tumbaile" by the three dancers.

In all of these numbers the artists made the most of the Spanish reputation for chivalry and coquetry in glance and gesture.

Round after round of applause greeted the solo numbers of Rogelio Machado, pianist, and Carlos Montoya, guitarist, who also provided accompaniments for the ensemble.

Machado gave a technically spectacular rendition of Liszt's Spanish Rhapsody and was called back insistently until he agreed to an encore.

Montoya's fingers on the guitar also brought persistent applause and a second solo by him was substituted for a native dance originally programmed for Argentinita.

Particular mention should go also to the quaint Basque dances and costumes to the Seville Zapateado or tap dance done by Argentinita and Senorita Lopez, and to the entire performance of Senor Rey.

During the intermission, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, president of the Civic Music association which sponsored the event, read an invitation to local members to attend concerts in the Civic Music series at Findlay.

CIO DECLARES NEXT MOVE UP TO EMPLOYERS

Defense Commission Strives For Quick Settlement Of Wage Dispute.

(By United Press)

DOWNEY, Calif. — The United Automobile Workers' (CIO) union today threatened to make the Vultee Aircraft company strike a "test case" for the entire industry, rather than continue negotiations on the basis of the wage over which the walkout had been called.

Union officials said that the next move "is up to Vultee," that their representatives would make no attempt to confer with company negotiators unless the CIO executive committee ordered them to do so, or unless the company capitulated or indicated willingness to bargain on the basis of a higher wage. This statement was in contradiction to reports last night that two federal conciliators were conferring secretly with company and union negotiators.

The national defense commission, which had threatened to take "vigorous" action, the war department and the U. S. conciliation commission in Los Angeles were working for a quick settlement, but their moves were not disclosed.

The strike, which began early yesterday, had closed the plant, and interrupted the manufacture of $80,000,000 worth of war planes for the United States, Great Britian and South American countries. Pickets were guarding the huge plant closely today.

At the bottom of the dispute was the unions' demand for a minimum hourly wage of 75 cents, instead of 50 cents. Union and Vultee representatives had been negotiating for more than two months before the walkout finally was called.

FOUR INJURED

Icy Pavements Cause More Mishaps In County.

Four persons were injured, none seriously, in two traffic accidents yesterday as icy pavements added to driving hazards in the Richland county area.

Most seriously injured was Joseph Howell, 58, 330 West Fifth street, who received facial abrasions in a collision a half mile west of Mansfield on Marion avenue road at 5:55 p. m. yesterday.

Injured in the same accident were Grant Hall, 37, of 106 West Fourth street, who sustained head lacerations; and Edgar J. Beck, 31, of 303 West Fifth street, lacerations of face and body. All were treated at General hospital and released.

According to highway patrolmen a car driven by Dorothy Wittmer, 27, R. D. 2, Lexington, skidded on an icy curve and struck the automobile in which the three men were riding. Both cars were badly damaged, patrolmen said.

Also injured yesterday was Paul R. Sitmens, 30, R. D. 5, Mansfield, who received a cut on the head when his automobile skidded on the ice and went into a ditch six miles west of Mansfield on Route 30-N.

Not That It Matters

A Question About Strikes In Defense Plants; Music Copyright Fight Rolls on

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IN Downey, Cal., this week employes of an airplane company engaged in turning out planes for national defense, went on strike after asking for a minimum wage which they deemed commensurate with the profits made by the company.

Realizing labor's determination to hold its hard-won gains made over a period of years, during the defense building program, we still have this pertinent question to answer: Have workers in factories engaged in national defense production any more right to strike than men being trained in army camps for national defense?

The latter are paid a far lower scale than workers in private industry and are forced, by the nature of their service, to abide by much more severe living conditions.

Both groups—soldiers and factory workers—are engaged in the serious business of providing adequate defense for a country which belongs to both of them.

Yet it would be a helluva situation if the army went on strike for higher wages, now wouldn't it?

THE fight between ASCAP and BMI continues merrily with opponents sending out bushels of literature on the two sides of the dispute. Everyone is familiar with the scrap which threatens to take practically all well known music and composers off the air lanes after Dec. 31.

To the layman it seems impossible that all of our beloved music will be heard no more over the networks of the big broadcasting companies, but the chances are that is what will happen.

BMI—Broadcast Music, Inc.,—is a new organization formed within the industry and it has its own version of the situation. It claims that the industry paid ASCAP $4,150,000 in 1939 for the air use of the songs of well known composers and that the ante was to have been jumped 100 percent over that figure in 1941—to $8,750,000. And the big broadcasting chains refuse point blank to pay it.

After Dec. 31 BMI will have only the music of publishing houses that do not belong to ASCAP—notably the E. C. Shirmer, Hinds, Hayden and Eldredge, M. M. Cole, Southern Music and other companies—such music that is considered public property because copyrights have run out (as "Man On The Flying Trapeze," "Wearin' Of The Green" and folk songs) and the works of new composers who are not affiliated with ASCAP.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good and behind the fight there is encouragement for the unknown song writers who couldn't get a break under ASCAP's rigid requirements. BMI is hearing thousands of new songs a week and a lot of talented writers will get a break.

AN unusual honor is in store for a newspaper woman next Saturday when Governor Stark of Missouri proclaims the date "Mary Margaret McBride" Day. The now famous writer for Cosmopolitan magazine and radio columnist was once editor of the Mexico (Mo.) Ledger, which is said to have trained more famous feature writers and newspapers executives than any other paper in the country. She will be the speaker at a homecoming of former Ledger workers.

Mary Margaret, who six years ago was doing a small stint for NEA syndicate in New York, once told this writer that the greatest asset she possessed for a writing career was the fact that she been born and raised in a little mid-western town, and trained on a small town paper.

WHEN "Greek meets Greek" is nothing compared to what happens when Greek meets Italian. Mussolini must have a word for the Greeks by this time—but we won't print it.

Virginia Gayda says in his official Italian press that the Fascist government was misinformed as to the Greek attitude toward a "protective" Italian invasion, and that Italy really hadn't wanted to fight.

Need they tell us that?

high command today as having been sunk in the Atlantic, it said. The high command, however, did not identify it as a former American vessel.

The paper also declared a British battleship of the 29,000-ton Ramillies type had been sunk by another Italian submarine.

The high command's communique yesterday said a warship of the Ramillies class had been hit by three torpedoes, but did not claim the ship went down.

Mass British air attacks on the Italian Adriatic port of Brindisi, across the strait from Albania, were admitted by the high command, as the British continued to support the Greeks by pounding Italy's southern ports and bases.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire, the communique said, forced the British to drop nearly all their bombs in the seas or country. Some fires and damage were admitted, however.

ENLIST WOMEN IN GUARD UNIT

Mobilize 'Green Guards of America' For Share In National Defense.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The "Green Guards of America" are mobilizing.

On historic Pennsylvania Avenue, a small group of green-uniformed women, determined to have a share in national defense, are establishing an armory, in which they will be trained in sharpshooting, military drill, ambulance driving, elementary mechanics and first aid.

Mrs. Virginia Nowell, organizer of the Green Guards, hopes to establish a chain of armories throughout the country in which 1,000,000 American women soon will be training for defense.

"Today there is no place for women in national defense," says Mrs. Nowell. "The men tell us to go home and knit. That was all right 20 years ago. But today wars are fought on our front yards and on our roof tops, and we want American women to be ready."

The organization's name derives from the green felt uniforms that members, now numbering 400, buy. Uniforms consist of Sam Browne belt, military cap, jacket and pants. Mrs. Nowell scorns skirts.

"Who ever heard of a soldier wearing skirts except them Scotchmen?" she asks.

A projected course on the Guard curriculum is "the psychology of fear." According to Mrs. Nowell, a vital part in maintaining the civilian morale during air raids lies in overcoming the fear that grips the populace. Green Guards will be instructed by trained phychologists in the specialized science of dealing with fear, she said.

Founded on "Christian Principles, Patriotism, and Preparedness," the guard maintains that "one million women, uniformed, drilled, and trained to shoot rifles, to perform minor repairs on automobiles and to drive ambulances are vital in total defense against total war."

As soon as the home armory here is operating on schedule, Mrs. Nowell plans to tour the country establishing Guard units in major cities. Membership is open to any woman citizen willing to buy a uniform and spend four hours a week training.

MUSIC HELPS

Programs Planned To Build Patriotic Unity.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(U.P.)—The Department of Music at Pennsylvania State college has inaugurated a "loyalty through music" program in the interest of patriotism and national defense.

Music stressing "Americanism" is being emphasized at mass meetings and musical gatherings, Richard W. Grant, head of the department, announced.

Grant said the program is being undertaken because "the attention of students today is focused more than ever on the privileges and advantages of being an American."

"Music can play a significant part in uniting the thoughts and emotions of patriotism," he said.

Secret Weapon Used by British

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt —(U.P.)— Great Britain used a "secret weapon" in last Monday's smashing aerial attack on the Italian navy at Taranto, it was asserted today by British sources which described the weapon as highly satisfactory.

Some British experts thought the new weapon would revolutionize warfare in the Mediterranean zone to the advantage of the British.

The attack on Taranto harbor sank or crippled seven Italian warships, including three battleships, according to official statements.

The fleet has completed a 3,000 miles sweep of the Mediterranean during which they showed overwhelming superiority against the Italian fleet, British officers said.

Latest type British fighters, attached to the air arm, successfully defended British aircraft carriers against Italian dive bombers.

Messages of congratulations were pouring in on H. M. S. Illustrious, the aircraft carrier from which the raid on Taranto was conducted.

Say Nine Allied Planes Downed

ROME—(INS)—Nine British and Greek warplanes were sent crashing to earth by Italian bombers and pursuit craft which carried out heavy attacks on Greek positions, the Italian high command declared today.

Hardly mentioning ground activity, the high command's official communique said troop roads, enemy military concentrations and the airport of Larissa were bombed in the Fascist aerial counter-offensive.

Nazis Withdraw From Greece

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany, in order to avoid possible complications, is gradually withdrawing her 8,000 nationals in Greece, authorized sources indicated today.

Germans who live in Greek cities already subjected to air attacks, such as Salonika, are the first to be recalled.

These measures were described as purely practical and not political.

Greek-German relations will continue as before, authoritative sources asserted.

From a legal viewpoint, they explained, "really official war doesn't exist between Italy and Greece."

CHEERLESS DAY FOR CAB DRIVER

Rescues Amnesia Victim, Then Finds Her Mother Dead.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Taxi Driver Harry Fruchter today hoped his luck would change and bring a little cheer into his life.

First of all yesterday, he found Rose Schuller, 20, wandering along the east river waterfront—an apparent amnesia victim. He saw to it that she was taken to a hospital.

He then went to the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Paula Schuller, a German refugee, to inform her of her daughter's plight.

LONDON HIT BY HEAVIEST RAID

The raiders had the advantage of a full moon and a cloudless sky. The bombings were at a blitzkrieg tempo before midnight, then died down to the customary parade of nuisance raiders, although in somewhat larger force.

Two raiders were shot down, making the total 20 for 24 hours, during which time two British planes were lost and the pilot of one landed safely.

More than 20 incendiary and oil bombs fell in one small area, starting a fire that raged for an hour.

A number of firemen were killed or wounded when a bomb hit a recreation room. Three were missing and believed pinned under a billiard table, beneath a heap of wreckage.

Other parts of the country also were bombed and it was feared there were many casualties when a lone plane dropped four high explosive bombs in the thickly-populated area of a south coast town. Homes and a school were hit. Soldiers aided in rescue work.

Hamburg Given Heavy Bombing

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Hamburg was bombed by British planes last night, the official German news agency D. N. B. said today, and the German high command, without mentioning places, said British attacks on Germany had caused some damage.

The high command said these British attacks had damaged an administration building and a wharf works, had set fire to a grain silo and had struck a hospital, wounding several persons and killing one.

Coventry Reduced To Shambles

COVENTRY, Eng.—(U.P.)—Walls lean crazily, chimneys stand like charred tree stumps after a forest fire and debris lies 50 feet high in the streets where two days ago was a thriving industrial city with traditions dating back almost 900 years.

Now it is a "blitz" town. One A. R. P. warden lolling in an upholstered chair in front of what had been one of the city's smartest shops said he was guarding against looters.

Asked how many bombs had fallen, he replied wearily, "thousands."

Block after block of ruins tended to confirm the warden's estimate.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—You ought to meet Robert Carlton Sherwood, 29, a lad with a way about him. It's a half-million-dollar way, so you know it's good.

You won't be amazed at Bob's exploit if you know first about his conquest of the oboe, intimately tied into his movie career. He "tootled" his way into pictures, in fact, on his oboe.

That was some years ago. Bob had already been itching for years to produce pictures—since he was 11—but the immediate problem was to find a job in music. He wanted to get in the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and he picked on the oboe because oboe-players were scarcer than fiddlers or drummers. He knew music but he didn't know the oboe. So he found himself a nice quiet basement to spare the family, and practiced, and in no time at all he, and oboe, got a job.

* * *

Paramount studio workers had an orchestra, and the orchestra yearned for an oboe. The members offered inducements, including a job, if he and his oboe would join. The only movie job that really interested him was producing. Modesty forbade his mentioning that. So he didn't take a job, although he did visit the lot often, his oboe serving as a pass, in order to watch movies being made.

There ensues a time lapse here . . . devoted to restless Bob's acquiring a name in radio with a voice that in early youth had won him a national oratorical contest. He also acted at Pasadena playhouse, and produced his first movie on $500 he scraped together.

This was a short, a "Chinese fantasy," which Sid Grauman spotted on one of his programs. Somebody at M-G-M saw it and offered Bob a job making "shorts." They told him that if he were a good boy, in 10 or 12 years he might get a chance to produce features. Bob said, "No, thanks." He was in a hurry.

* * *

So we move to a scene of Bob Sherwood, rapidly ageing to about 27, buying a script for Janet Gaynor. Janet liked the story but was retiring to have her baby. Then Bob saw the Charles Bonner novel, "Legacy," before publication and bought it with his radio savings. He thought of Warner Baxter for it although he knew it would be tough getting Baxter, who was sick of pictures and thinking of retiring. But Baxter liked the idea, and so did some others and so. . . .

"I made my first trip to New York to get some money," says Bob Sherwood. "I went into the bank and I told them about the story and I came out with half a million dollars. No, I'm not a good salesman. I let the book sell itself, and I found them interested. It wasn't hard.

"Producing? Well, it's not exactly like I pictured it. There are a lot of financial details to tie you down, and I like creative work better. But nobody will be able to say I'm 'young' when we've finished. I'm getting gray-haired by the hour."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember that it's time for anti-freeze in the radiator.

This being the final day of Book week, it seems pertinent to inquire: "Have you returned the one you borrowed?"

The Republican national committee announces that it completed the campaign without a deficit—how dreadfully old-fashioned!

Should Voting Age Be Reduced?

SHOULD 18 be substituted for 21 as the minimum voting age? That question is being asked again—this time after a study commission of the National Education Association has weighed opinions on both sides and withheld any recommendation.

It appears that 21, as the age at which "majority" is attained, has a common law origin that has come into quite general statutory acceptance in the United States, although 18 is regarded as an acceptable age for voluntary military service and Civil war records disclose many volunteers well under that age.

Just what age has to do with voting qualifications is not entirely clear as it would seem quite obvious that a young man or woman at 18, after completing a secondary education, should be better qualified to vote intelligently than an illiterate person two or three times that age.

There is the matter of "ripened judgment," however, which is interposed as an objection to reducing the age requirement for voting—but students of machine politics, as played in New York, Chicago and some other large cities, may contend that "ripened judgment" is among the least desirable of voting qualifications.

In any event, the question may well be regarded as more academic than practical, with its accomplishment even more unlikely than proposed abandonment of the electoral college method of choosing president and vice president—which would require a constitutional amendment that will be impossible until the Solid South becomes influenced by judgment instead of prejudice.

Japanese Menace Overestimated

ACCORDING to James R. Young, the American newspaper man jailed by the Japs for printing the truth about their Chinese campaign, the "Japanese menace" is a mere bogey.

"Japan is a terrific nuisance but not a threat to anybody," he says. The people are on short rations with nearly all the essentials of life—rice, water, electricity, matches, sugar, leather, cotton, wheat, medical supplies, wool and gasoline. How, he asks, could a nation which can't meet its own requirements for normal living be a serious threat to a nation like ours, which has all the goods that Japan lacks?

"Even the Chinese," he maintains, "are better off than the Japanese. They have no such food shortage, and their national spirit is far better. Most of the Japanese are strongly opposed to the Chinese war, but unable to do anything about it because the army is in control of the government. The country is not united politically. There is a fairly democratic press. The business men, like the general public, are tired of supporting the war machine."

All this sounds reassuring to Americans, some of whom have a notion that the Japanese are a super race about which nothing can be done. The Japanese army, to be sure, is strong and aggressive, and must be guarded against. But the danger, and the problem as a whole, if Mr. Young is right, is less serious than many had supposed.

America's Three Blessings

THE "object and end" of American government is aptly expressed by Clarence Manion, professor of constitutional law in Notre Dame university. It was stated by Thomas Jefferson with the first breath of life in this republic:

> "We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."
>
> Here, he says, is "the most deeply philosophical credo of all political science. Here are the self-evident truths that distinguish the American constitutional system from any other government on earth. Here for the first and only time in human history is a man properly and officially oriented with respect to his Creator, his fellow-man and his government."

Today the nations of the earth mostly have only the first of the three supreme blessings which should be theirs, and even their life is precarious. Liberty is swept from this present world by dictators, and the pursuit of happiness is an almost forgotten dream.

The more reason, then, for Americans to cherish all three and make sure that the world shall not forget them.

Speed and Sudden Death

UNLESS a traffic accident occurs close home, or involves people we know, it doesn't seem important.

With around 40,000 persons killed each year in auto crashes, and several hundred thousand injured, we just can't be bothered by smash-ups in other parts of Ohio and in other states.

The trouble about this attitude, however, is that the same sort of tragedies that occur a hundred or two hundred miles away are just as likely to happen here as there.

As, for instance, the one in Detroit a couple of nights ago when a Gresse Point young society woman, 23, and her socially prominent escort, 24, were killed when the car which the young man was driving at an estimated speed of 70 miles an hour left the pavement, broke off a lamp post and crashed into a tree. The accident occurred at 2:30 in the morning.

But this happened in Detroit—why mention it here? Merely because such tragedies are not confined to any particular territory and attention is directed to this one in the hope that it may be effective in causing some youthful speeders to THINK—before it is too late.

"Kin-mother" is suggested as a substitute for the "mother-in-law" designation of that relationship—but the attitude seems more important than the name.

Among other things that need not be unduly worried about is the fact that the supply of imported champagne has dwindled several thousand cases.

An efficiency expert says thousands of tons of sugar are left annually in the bottom of teacups—but salvaging would scarcely pay.

"Hitler Defies World in Beer Cellar Speech"—and if the fumes had been a little stronger he might have challenged the universe.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Here's a quick glimpse at both sides of the footlights of New York's newest musical hit, "Cabin in the Sky." . . . The fine performance of Dooley Wilson as the well-meaning but weak "Little Joe," to whom "natural" means only one thing—a story told by dice. . . . Buxom Ethel Waters taking bow upon bow as she ranges between pathos and jitterbugging in the slightly-bewildering but ever-interesting fantasy. . . . Sabled Park Avenue cheek by jowel with the cream of dusky Harlem in the audience. . . . Ralph Bellamy of the films drawing "oo's" and "ah's" from the debs when he is discovered sitting unobtrusively in an aisle seat well back.

Rotund Sophie Tucker giggling as the diminutive Dooley goes from trouble to trouble in a hilarious sequence of events. . . . Petuni's (Ethel Waters) melodious chanting of "Taking a Chance on Love," a tune that may become as big a hit as the show. . . . The swift pacing and change of tempo throughout the play—it opens with a death-bed scene, runs a course through the peace and quiet of "Little Joe's" backyard and the musical bedlam of a cabaret, to a fade-out representing the stairway to the pearly gates and the "Cabin in the Sky." . . . Almost everybody in town has a 'piece" of this show. . . . It is one Broadway production with more backers than players.

THIS column welcomes the appearance on the newsstands of the new Stage magazine. Its first issue contains the complete script of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." This alone, or Alexander Woollcott's contribution for that matter, make it worth many times the price of admission.

The most abrupt theatrical failure of the year was a poor thing called "'Tis of Thee," which closed after only one performance. . . . In all but five or six Manhattan skyscrapers the "13th" floor is omitted. . . . The numbers run up to 12 and jump to 14. . . . It's a superstition that never will die. . . . Hotel men say many guests absolutely refuse to accept rooms on floor 13.

Margie Hart, the strip-tease dancer, says she never has read a book. . . . Her press-agent describes her as "tall, curvaceous, red-haired and slumberously eyed." . . . Richard Gerard, composer of "Sweet Adeline" has just turned 55 . . . .

THE night before Maxine Sullivan began to sing at the Beachcomber I was telling Monty Proser about that song she does so well—"Molly Malone." . . . Be sure she uses it, I urged him. . . . He had a funny look on his face for a minute and then began to hum a few bars. . . . "Is that it?" he asked. . . . "Sure," I told him, "how did you know it?" . . . "I'm a Limey," he grinned. "My nurse used to sing it to me every night."

Eddie Melnicker, who used to be a theatrical manager for Loew's and United Artists, is head of a clothing establishment in Washington, D. C. . . . If you like good bed reading, try "Three Harbors" and "Stars on the Sea." . . . Maybe you don't like to read in bed. . . . I do. . . . I like to eat in bed, . . . Unity In Congress Not Expected

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

GETTING Democrats and Republicans to unify behind our national government, now that election's over, doesn't look so difficult at present. Leaders of the winning element are at great pains to show that they've no intention to be overbearing. Leaders of the defeated contingent, on the opposite hand, are doing their best to behave like first-rate losers.

Nevertheless one notes in Washington, where the two groups' political managements are concentrated, an undertone of doubt as to the idea's satisfactory workability in practice.

Democrats and Republicans might harmonize fairly well in such an emergency as today's if the issue between them were a mere matter of their respective party labels. The difficulty sensed by some competent observers of the situation is that, irrespective of partisan considerations, rival basic philosophies are in conflict.

During the campaign it frequently was pointed out that President Roosevelt and Candidate Willkie were pretty much in agreement on general principles. They certainly seemed so. Without mentioning one another's names they exchanged numerous exceedingly mean utterances, but it's understandable that, the fight being over they may be able to unify quite amiably. But will the hitherto anti-New Deal Democrats in the senate and the house of representatives join in the unification? That's the question I hear being asked in Washington.

Effective Control?

If the Democratic party label signified conclusively, President Roosevelt, so labeled, has had, since 1932, an overwhelming majority in congress. However, between the extremely small Republican minority and the anti-New Deal Democrats, he's had anything but effective control over the legislative chambers.

Now, will the still remaining Republicans unify under his leadership?

And will the anti-New Deal Democrats fall in line?

Take Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, for instance. Thus far he's fought F. D. R.'s major policies like sixty—harder than most Republicans. He opposed a presidential third nomination for all he was worth. He voted for F. D. though (at any rate he said he was going to do so), deeming himself under obligations to acquiesce in his party convention's presidential selection. Is Senator Glass going to be, henceforward, any more a pro-New Dealer than he was previously?

The same query fits the cases of such others as Senators Byrd, Clark, George, Tydings and Wheeler. Will they all say, "Well, F. D.'s got this popular mandate so we've got to indorse whatever he specifies"?

I hear a good many skeptical answers.

Another thing, unification talk alarms a sizable proportion of public men, and perhaps a share of the rank and file of voters. It hints at a merger of the two big parties into one, which sounds a trifle totalitarian; Germany, Italy, Russia and up-to-date Spain have one-party systems. You've no place to go if you don't belong to that party.

Of course that isn't what our unificationers are proposing. Their thesis is that the world's in an awful state and that solidarity here is essential for our protection. Yet there's a bit of sentiment to the effect that we don't want too much of it.

Realignment.

The fact is, plenty of good judges say, that what we're working up to isn't a single party but a realignment of parties. The theory is that Democrats and Republicans alike are split two ways apiece and ought to be sorted out afresh, into so-called liberals and so-called conservatives, or, to put it in modern language, into New Dealers and anti-New Dealers.

When our new congress gets together in 1941, we'll see how much unity we've arrived at.

Listen World!

Are You Exhibit A?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE you a worried father? A distressed mother? A distracted teacher? And are you wondering why the youngsters won't take your advice—why they're openly amused by your lectures? Yes. Then look yourself over. You claim to know and practice the rules for right living.

BUT HOW CONVINCING ARE YOU, AS EXHIBIT A?

Walk to the nearest mirror. Look yourself over. Don't smirk. Don't pose. Don't look as you'd like to look. Look as you do look—as the youngsters see you. How well do your sermons stack up in the face of that evidence? You claim to know what will keep people happy—what will make them brave and buoyant. Does YOUR face reflect happiness? Is it brave and buoyant?

"But I've had trouble," you say. "I've had to work too hard. People have been unkind to me. I lost my money. I've had shocks. People I loved died—"

Had trouble? Sure you have. So's everybody. So will these youngsters. And that's just the point—if rules are any good, they must work during trouble. They'll help you get the best of trouble. Have YOUR rules helped YOU get the best of trouble? Have they kept doubt out of your mind and fear out of your hart? Have they preserved your enthusiasm and eagerness, your fire and your friendliness.

IF THEY HAVEN'T, WHAT GOOD ARE YOUR RULES TO YOUTH?

For youth wants to live heroically. That's the purpose and aim of its magnificent exuberance. Youth wants to live dangerously—not because it courts disaster, but because it counts fear a contemptible thing. Youth wants to live triumphantly—for of what worth is man, unless he can triumph over circumstances?

Have YOUR rules helped you to live heroically? Is yours a triumphant face? Or is it a beaten face? A dejected, discouraged smear of features? A feeble, furtive, scramble of flesh? Or, perchance, a complacent blob of fat?

Hard words but you might as well hear them—FOR THOSE ARE THE WORDS THAT MOST YOUNGSTERS THINK AS THEY LOOK AT MOST ADULTS.

"So that old fat-head's going to tell us how to live!" they say to themselves. "The nerve of him! Look him over! Ain't he the sweet eyeful, though! Lookit that faded eye, that flabby mouth—yet he thinks he knows what it's all about. Why, that old bird was licked before he even started.

"And Ma—poor old Ma—she's another. What does Ma know about life—the kind of life girls live now? Always talking about what a 'nice girl' should do. Well, she's been nice—and that's all she's been. If that's all niceness buys for you—not for me!

"Yet, just because they're older, they think they can teach the world. BUT WHAT DIFFERENCE DO YEARS MAKE IF YOU DON'T DO ANYTHING WITH THEM AFTER YOU GET THEM?"

Why won't the youngsters listen to you? Look at your own face. Review your own life. Would YOU have listened to that kind of a face, would YOU have been impressed by that kind of a life—at eighteen?

Youth Seeks the Farm.

According to findings of the American Country Life association, composed for the most part of women members, a depression-born youth movement to the farm is under way and has gained such impetus that in this year alone, there was an actual shortage in the corn belt of farms for more than 24,000 young families who wished to leave urban areas.

There is nothing in this movement that should prove strange. The farm has figured in every migration of people since we have had cities and industries. In times when jobs are plentiful in mills and factories, youth drifts from the farm to the populous centers to find work that pays wages far in excess of what is to be earned tilling the soil. But when city jobs are lacking, not only youth, but adults as well, look toward the farm as a haven from the vicissitudes of depression.

There was prosperity during the 1920s and more than 6,000,000 people left the farm for city jobs. In the last decade, however, only some 2,000,000 did this, and now the trend is reversed. It goes to show that in times of stress people depend on the good earth, which seldom fails them, for a means to exist.—Ohio State Journal.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Politicos Scan Election Results, See Solid South Deciding Factor

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

IT WAS a thought-provoking election that President Roosevelt won.

His opponent, Wendell Willkie, received more votes than any Republican candidate in history (including winners). . . . Virtually every one of America's 18 largest cities went strongly Democratic, to indicate that the future political setup may tend to be rural vs. urban with the Solid South holding the balance of power. . . . The center of Republican strength shifted from New England to the dust-bowl area.

This week politicos mulled the prospects for both sides.

* * *

The Winners.

"The fact that Mr. Roosevelt carried state after state which elected Republican governors would seem to demonstrate that the vote-getting magic lay in his own name and not in that of the Democratic party," wrote W. B. Ragsdale, AP's political expert.

"The president apparently won in spite of party lethargy and disaffection. His electoral sweep left him with fewer party debts to pay than any other president since long before the Civil war. (He is) in a position to...steer his course during the next four years by the guiding star of the national good, his compass undisturbed by the magnetism of party tugs."

* * *

The Losers.

"It has always taken a major operation," Ragsdale asserted, "to remove any party that has spent as much as 12 years in the seat of national power.

"In every case in which the Democrats have remained in power for longer than eight years, the Federalists, Whigs, or the opposition by whatever name their party has been called, have had to change the name of that party to unite enough opposition elements to regain control. . . .

"If the Republicans are to wrest power from the Democrats they must develop either an issue or a technique by which they may present a broader and more pointed personal appeal for votes than any they have yet uncovered," Ragsdale concluded.

* * *

GOP Isn't Gloomy.

Republicans showed scant signs of down-heartedness.

Wendell Willkie, though defeated, gained stature as an unquitting fighter. Monday night he told supporters their role should be that of the "loyal opposition" which won't oppose things "just for the sake of opposition."

As for his own role, it appeared he will take advantage of his present excellent position to mold his party's policy. But in this he will face difficulties. Historically, the policy of a minority party is shaped by the votes of its congressmen. Their past voting record is largely in conflict with Willkie's campaign position.

The Willkie-for-President clubs may be continued, he said, but not under his name. And he squelched any rumors that he might accept a cabinet or defense post. He said it was a "totalitarian idea" that the minority "surrender its conviction" and join the majority for the sake of a united front. Later there were hints that Willkie is planning a career as writer and speaker.

At Home

Fifty Minutes.

The time is Tuesday morning.

8.10 A. M.—1,000 pounds of dynamite exploded at the Burton powder works of the American Cyanamid Corp. near Newcastle, Pa. Three men were killed.

8:32 A. M.—A terrific blast at the plant of the United Railway and Signal Company (maker of railway torpedo signals) killed eight persons and injured many women employes. The plant is located at Woodbridge, N. J., near Manhattan. Thirteen buildings were destroyed.

9:00 A. M.—An explosion wrecked one building, killed three men at the Trojan Powder Company plant near Allentown, Pa. FBI officials investigated, concluded that the explosions were coincidents. Only in the last was a defense order involved.

Good Neighboring.

Henry Wallace wasn't so busy running for vice-president that he didn't find time to bone up on his Spanish. Soon he will have a chance to use it. He's to represent the U. S. at the inauguration of General Avila Camacho as president of Mexico, Dec. 1.

Mexican officials were gleeful because (1) the U. S. virtually ended the threat of a Mexican revolution led by General Andreu Almazan, Avila's opponent, in officially recognizing Avila; and because (2) Wallace, a backer of the Good Neighbor policy, is generally popular in Mexico.

* * *

Lewis and Labor.

Privately, both CIO and AFL leaders say it is the uncompromising stand of heavy-browed John L. Lewis that has blocked peace in the labor movement.

Neither side has seriously puffed on the labor peace-pipe since parleys broke down more than a year ago. The AFL refused Lewis' suggestion that all CIO unions be admitted to the AFL. AFL President Green wanted jurisdictional disputes settled first. Each claims about 4,000,000 members and each has been afraid the other will end up in a combined union with a majority.

But now peace talk definitely is in the breeze again. The CIO meets in Atlantic City this coming week and the AFL in New Orleans. FDR is expected to serve as the matchmaker.

Much hinges on whether Lewis keeps his pre-election promise to resign as CIO head if FDR was re-elected. Indications are that he will, though left-wing dominated CIO groups are backing a "draft Lewis" drive.

* * *

Cold Wave.

A preview of winter was offered residents in most of the Northern U. S. this week in the form of gales and dipping thermometers. Montana had 17 below zero temperatures; several score Americans were killed, including some Minnesota duck hunters; a steamer on Lake Michigan was broken in two.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Why Is It Called "Arctic?"

It is no accident—rather it is logical—that the frigid regions in the North should be known as the Arctic.

The name Arctic is of classic deviation, being rooted in the Greek word for "bear."

It is from the circumstance that the constellation called the Great Bear circles the North Star that the frozen areas at the top of the world came to be called the Arctic.

And, to settle a bet, both "c's" in Arctic should be pronounced.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

How to Face Work.

Do not take up your work and think
These tasks are far too hard.
And fear you cannot conquer them.
Such thoughts will but retard
You. Rather view the day's routine
With calmness as you say,
These tasks, though difficult, I can
And will perform today.
"Impossibles" have been achieved
By this—courageously
Attacking work determined to Achieve a victory.

Adolf Hitler: "I imagine that I am not only the hardest man which the German nation has had for decades, perhaps centuries, but in addition I possess the greatest authority."

President Roosevelt: "I, for one, do not believe that the era of democracy in human affairs can or will be snuffed out in our lifetime. The very people (oppressed by modern tyrants) under their iron heels will, themselves, revolt."

Shaken Rumanians.

Suppose that an invading, sadistic army was bent on pulverizing Rumania. It would have to labor strenuously for several months to cause the havoc done in three quivering minutes by an earthquake Sunday morning. It was Rumania's worst.

Much of beautiful Bucharest was in shambles. Whole villages were wiped out. More than 1,000 persons were crushed to death. The worst-hit area was 100 miles northeast of Bucharest.

Broken Heart.

A bewildered, aging man stood before Britain's tense House of Commons on Sept. 3, 1939, and said sadly: "Everything I have worked for . . . has crashed in ruins." Neville Chamberlain, 70, had just declared war, for Britain, on Adolf Hitler's Germany.

Just a few weeks ago the ailing ex-prime minister, who added the word appeasement to the world's vocabulary, confided to U. S. Ambassador Kennedy: "Since my illness makes it impossible for me to be of further service to my country . . . perhaps God and His mercy will take me away soon." This week he died, not so much of illness as of a broken heart. His death came precisely a half-year after turning over his burden to Winston Churchill.

Science

On Relieving Paralysis.

In several, but not all, attempts physicians at the Crippled Children's Hospital, Marlin, Texas, have rebuilt children's muscles afflicted with infantile paralysis. They (1) dissect layers of fatty, diseased tissue that are sandwiched with good strips of muscle, and which won't contract, then (2) replace the fatty strips, where necessary, with a weaving made from strips of tendon. These strips of tendon are sewed into good muscles both above and below the paralyzed muscle.

COLONIAL HOMES TOPIC FOR CLUB DISCUSSION

Art Study Members Hear Paper By Mrs. William Kuhn, Mrs. Brinkerhoff, Miss Dickson Preside at Tea Table.

WICKLIFFE MANOR was the scene of a meeting of the Art Study club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Fred Dippman, Mrs. Frank Glasgow and Mrs. J. E. Fendrick were hostesses for the meeting, which was attended by 32 members and guests.

Mrs. William Kuhn presented a paper on "Colonial Homes and Their Furnishings." She traced the history of colonial homes from the early log huts with dirt floors to the stately southern mansions as they appear today. She stated further that Maryland has more examples of true southern architecture preserved today than any other state in the union. Mrs. Kuhn also discussed furniture of the same period in American history.

Tea was served at the close of the afternoon from a table centered with a low colonial bouquet of pastel-tinted flowers. White tapers at either end of the table were placed in holders decorated to resemble miniature colonial bouquets. Mrs. Marion Brinkerhoff and Miss Lillian Dickson poured.

Club members are planning to entertain with a guest party on Nov. 28 in the ball room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Mrs. Boyd Wierman will be in charge of a program on "Living Pictures" at that time. Hostesses will be club officers and members of the program committee.

Technique of Home Shampoo

By MME QUI VEVE

The beauty industry, which extracts millions of dollars from the purses of Uncle Sam's daughters every year, has a grievance. When you get your hair done you'll be sure to hear about it. The vogue for coiffures with smooth crowns and rolls, or smooth crowns and ringlets, has resulted in a frenzy for home shampooing. When the finger wave flourished the little dearhearts had to have professional attention. Not now. They soap the pretty mop, do it up on metal curlers that keep them awake and miserable all night, save their money for ice cream sodas or what have you?

Economy and thrift are worthy virtues, but one wonders just how the brain wool is faring. Girls of school age can't be expected to know much about getting tresses shining clean, are likely to do a hurried job and the effects then would be debilitating to the glorious mop as soap scum is a menace. If they feel that they must reduce the beauty budget, let them heed these suggestions concerning the renovating of silky threads that grow atop the pate.

Three needs there are: the right kind of soap, a bath spray with a current of water strong enough to knock you down, plenty of energy.

There are soaps that adapt themselves agreeably to the skin, but that do not act favorably upon the hair. Beauty shop owners are fussy about shampoo mediums; the right ones rinse out quickly and easily, others cling to the hair shafts and in time make the permanent wave limp.

To rub a bar of soap on the head —as the members of the male sex —is to have an unsatisfactory head washing. Take a bar the size of ordinary toilet soap, place in a quart mason jar, add a scant one-half teaspoonful of borax, fill the jar with boiling water, let stand three days before using. You will have enough soapy liquid for six or eight shampoos. After you pour off the clear top portion to use, add more water to the remainder.

Brush the hair well, massage the scalp for several minutes.

Use the bath spray before soaping so as to remove surface dust. Use some of the soap, distributing it well. Be lavish with elbow grease. A half-hearted shampoo is no good at all. Rinse well with the spray, having the water as hot as you can bear it. Fluff up a second lather and rinse that away.

Have at hand a quart of water to which three tablespoons of vinegar have been added, pour over the head. Then for a final rinsing. Don't have the water cold if you have a permanent, the hair won't curl as well as when the water is warm. Give the scalp a friction before winding the ends of the hair on curlers.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT CAN BE A LIABILITY

IN MANY cases a declarer likes to have a singleton of some suit in his own hand or the dummy, as it is often an asset to one extent or another. There are times, however, when it can be a liability. One of the chief among these is the case of a No Trump declarer who possesses only a singleton of the dummy's suit, or the dummy has only a singleton of his suit. One more card would afford an extra chance to try a finesse, and also would aid the probability of the suit establishing, since it would cut down by one the number of cards held by the declarer.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 NT

There is nothing particularly terrible about the bidding of this hand in a rubber game, but it certainly illustrates one point clearly—the value of having a couple of cards of your partner's suit when you get into a game at No Trumps. There are many fine players who would not think of forcing with 2-No Trumps on South's hand, but would prefer to respond to the heart call with one of the other suits, depending upon which method the pair was using. They probably would wind up in a game at No Trumps anyway, but the effort to avoid trouble would have been made.

West led the club 3 to the Q and K. Followed then the heart K, spade Q, heart A and the heart J, in an effort to set up some heart tricks. When East showed out, South knew the jig was up. West won that trick with the Q and shifted to the diamond 9 to the A. East returned his club 7 to the J, and the contract was set then by the club A and heart 10.

If South had held the heart 2 instead of West, and one less diamond, he could have taken a winning finesse in the dummy's suit and also could have established a low card trick in it, to make his contract.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Do you understand clearly the way that the three principal types of lead-throwing end plays may be combined in a single hand? Can you set up examples combining any two of them, and one which involves all three general kinds in one hand?

Where the Best of Friends Meet

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

As the voice "shooing" the cat came over the wire from the unknown place where Marion was talking to me over the telephone, I felt a sudden spiritual kinship to Alice in Wonderland, and wondered just when I should be able to emerge from this particular rabbit hole.

For the accents of that feminine voice were as familiar to me as those of my mother-in-law, or any other feminine member of my family. If I were not dreaming, the woman who had said "Scat Melinda!" was Mrs. Ticer, my nearest neighbor, and my faithful and loyal friend as well! Through many a domestic crisis has my good neighbor seen me.

But this must mean—I pulled myself back to logic with a mighty effort—that Marion, instead of being miles away, as I had thought her, was less than half a mile away from me. But I knew that I must let no hint of my knowledge escape me.

Thought is so much quicker than speech that I had settled Marion at Mrs. Ticer's, and resolved to be cautious before her own excited reaction to the cat discipline found voice.

"Did you hear that?" she queried, adding quickly, "I must go."

I buried my conscience under six feet of earth.

"Hear what?" I asked carelessly. "I can hear you, and somewhere in the distance I can hear a clock ticking. That is all."

"You didn't hear a-a- man calling a dog?"

I made the mental comment that Marion was doing some "stalling" on her own account.

"No, dear," I smiled a bit grimly at the realization that her own subterfuge had made it unnecessary for me to fib to her.

"You're — you're sure," she faltered.

"Absolutely," I countered.

I heard a childish sigh of relief.

"Then I can wait a few seconds more," she said. "You promise you won't try to find out where I'm calling from?"

"Yes, I promise that," I said soberly, wishing I could scream to her: "You darling, foolish baby, I know where you are, and I'm coming for you." But I kept my voice under control, and did not betray my knowledge that Dicky had rushed precipitately, though noiselessly, into the room, and was writing something hurriedly on a big sheet of paper, which, a moment later, he held before my eyes.

"The call is from Ticer's," he wrote. "I'm going right over and Dad is getting busy. Hold her on the phone as long as you can."

I nodded my comprehension, and he rushed out again as silently as he had come, while I made another appeal to Marion.

"Darling, won't you think of your mother?" I pleaded. "I know something you think is terrible must be the matter, or you'd never let her suffer this way. Are you sure whatever this is, may not be something in which I could help you? I would do it, you know, and keep it a secret between you and me. Please let me help you."

There was no mistaking the sound which came to my ears then. It was a sob, deep, tearing, but suddenly choked back.

"Oh! how I wish I could tell you, Auntie Madge," she said after a second's silence, and there was no hint of tears in her voice now. "But I can't, and I've only time to give you a message to Mother, and to ask you a queer question which I wish you would answer, and not ask me why I am asking it. Can you do that?"

I tried to spar for time, while I prayed silently that Dicky would be in time to get her. I knew that he would not hesitate to use physical force to bring her to the farmhouse, if he could not persuade her to come peacefully.

"Tell Mother I love her, and I'm safe and well, and that I'll get in touch with her as soon as I possibly can. And now, do you know whether Aunt Katherine has heard from her husband lately?"

CHAPTER XXXIX

And she had escaped from him, gone out trembling, breathless to her car, driven away blindly into the black night. She had felt the car slip on a wet bank, bog itself hopelessly; she had curled down on the seat cold and frightened, to get what rest she might until morning. And in the cold dawn she had started walking briskly down the road, with the mud underfoot, and her nervous terrors gradually fading away into the light of common day.

* * *

A little man driving a shabby small car had given her a lift. He had spoken of a turkey won in a raffle; he had told her other things; they came back to her now, etched deeply into her consciousness because of her fright and shame that day, her anxiety to leave the whole experience behind her. His wife had been "mad" at him; he had had a son named "Brucie."

Jocelyn looked at the dinner-table circle: Sissy and Ed were laughing, and all the others were in gales of high spirits. Every time Phil's eye caught Jocelyn's look he smiled at her that grave proprietary smile that set all her pulses hammering. Norma had seated herself next to Jocelyn; she was keeping close to her now, showing a trust in the older girl, an affectionate confidence that Jocelyn had found very touching in bold, shallow, arrogant Norma.

Now she could not think of it without despair. She could not think of Philip's love, of his pride without despair. But neither could she desert Jim Scudder in his hour of need, he had carried her through hers to Philip's very arms. For it had been Jim Scudder who had picked her up in the cold dawn on the muddy, unfamiliar road. She remembered it all now, and her spirit sickened within her.

But how could she, so soon to take her honored place among his friends as Philip Fordyce's wife, tear down the whole structure of her dignity, fatally prejudice all these new neighbors, with this story of an office girl following a married man to a lonely mountain studio, running away from him in the night. . . .

* * *

A wave of agonized color rushed over her from head to feet. That same married man, whose name must inevitably be brought into the story, had come down to Philip's house, had killed himself there—how long would it take the gossips to put two and two together about that?

Jocelyn could not eat; food choked her. She sat frozen with consternation. Whichever way she looked she could find no comfort, and it seemed to her that all the troubles of her life were nothing to that which faced her on her wedding day.

Jocelyn awakened early; she had had trouble in getting to sleep and had slept restlessly. It was terrible to have yesterday's tangle present itself to her again.

Everyone except Scudder and one other believed him guilty. Jocelyn was that other. But what it would cost her today and all the days of her life to say so, she dared not try to estimate. This story would never die. The scandal that Philip's quick explanation had spared her when Kent Dunham had killed himself would be revived; the world would have them lovers, of course, and so Philip would face his new marriage burdened with a daughter in the strait that Norma found herself and a wife about whom all tongues were buzzing.

* * *

Jocelyn writhed, thinking of it, thinking of the ordeal that she must undergo this morning. When Philip arrived to take her and Norma to town, she had no choice but to take him at once into her council.

"Phil, this is so terrible, dear. But I have to ask you. What time does court open?"

"Jocelyn, is your mind still running on that case? They'll not hang him if he didn't do it, dear!"

"Phil, I ought to be there this morning!"

"You ought to be there? You can't. We've got this landing on our hands. There'll be no court this afternoon."

"No court! Oh, Phil, we're lost!"

Phil looked at her, surprised and puzzled. They were driving to town. Norma had been nervous but quiet over her part of the morning's program; she understood the necessity of appearing to have come in on the Matsonia, of facing the ordeal of being interviewed and photographed on the dock.

"Nobody'll question it," her father had said, reassuring her. "Everyone will have too much else to think about. Landing is about the busiest thing these people do, and if anyone doubts you came—why, there you are!"

Norma, satisfied, had subsided, only to make way for Jocelyn's first troubled outburst.

"Tell me what you mean, Jocelyn," Philip said, affectionately concerned, but not worried. "How are we lost?" Can anything else possibly be crowded into today?"

"You see, Phil, he didn't murder his wife," Jocelyn said.

"Didn't!" Phil echoed, convinced from her tone that this was more than mere speculation. "How d'you mean he didn't?"

"Because he was the man that gave me a lift that Sunday, the Sunday you picked me up in Piedmont, remember?"

"Jocelyn, that's sheer nonsense!"

"But it's not. I remember the name now—Scudder. I remember what he told me about his turkey that he'd won. It all came back to me, just as we left court yesterday. I knew I'd seen him before. I couldn't ever have thought where, because he looks like every other poor little defeated soul, but when he talked of Sunday before Thanksgiving I began to think where I had been Sunday before last Thanksgiving, and then it all came to me. He couldn't have done it, Phil. He found her murdered, just as he said. The doctors said it had eben done somewhere between 5 and 6, and he was on the other side of the bay then."

* * *

"You can't be sure of that," Philip said slowly. She could see that he was deeply disturbed. "You don't want to mix yourself into this, Jocelyn. It wouldn't do any good, and it would—after all, you were over there that night with Dunham, and Dunham killed himself—we'd have people—"

"You, Joisy!" Norma said, aghast.

"You see, there wasn't anyone else there that night," Philip was going on, "and it would start a lot of talk, naturally. They'd tie it up with his coming down to our house and killing himself—"

"But Phil," she said very white, "if it's Scudder's life?"

Illini Take To Air

Prepared to Use Wide Open Passing Game In Today's Game With Ohio State.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.— (U.P.) —Illinois was prepared to use a wide open passing game today against the favored Ohio State Buckeyes at Memorial stadium in the final home battle of the Illini season.

The promise of clear weather encouraged Illinois's aerial game, for firm footing would aid receivers in getting down under the passes of Dick Good. Ohio State entered the game with an advantage in reserve strength, weight and speed and its rushing game, built around Jim Langhurst and Don Scott, was expected to prove troublesome for the Illini forwards.

A crowd of some 30,000 was expected to be on hand for the opening kickoff at 1.30 p. m. (CST).

AGED RESIDENT OF GALION DIES FRIDAY EVENING

Mrs. Dora Price, 82, Claimed By Death After Illness Of One Month.

GALION—Mrs. Dora Price, 82, died early Friday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. A. Johnston of 129 South Union street. She had been ill one month, complications causing her death.

Born in Hayesville, Ohio, Feb. 25, 1858, she was the daughter of Jacob and Mariah (Harnard) Snyder. Her first marriage in Richwood, Ohio, was in 1874 to Henry McPherson who preceded her in death. In 1911 she was married at Marysville to James K. Price who also died several years ago.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Johnston at whose home she died; and Mrs. J. Wilbur Dickey of Hillsdale, Michigan.

Mrs. Price came to Galion four years ago from Delaware, Ohio. She was a member of the Market Street Methodist church.

Funeral services are being completed today. They will probably be held Monday morning at the Snyder funeral home where friends may call any time. Rev. William Dunning, pastor of the Market Street Methodist church, will officiate, and burial will be made in Riverside cemetery at Troy, Ohio.

'Prayer Rock' of Mormon Pioneers To be Remembered

BASIN, Wyo. —(U.P.)— A stone marker will be erected on the spot where a large boulder which blocked the construction of the Sidon Canal, built by the Mormons in 1900, was removed by faith.

Bryon Sessions was in charge of the work when the rock was found to block the canal. He had no tools to remove it and no funds to purchase the necessary tools or powder.

Historians say he knelt in prayer and later the rock fell apart.

The marker, to be made from stone from the boulder, will bear this inscription:

Prayer Rock
Dedicated to the faith and courage of the Mormon Pioneers who built the Sidon Canal.

PROTEST RULE

Stutterers Oppose Exemption From Army Service.

IOWA CITY, Ia. —(U.P.)— Stutterers at the University of Iowa want no exemption from military service.

This they made clear in a recent letter to Lt.-Col. Lewis B. Hershey, acting selective service administrator.

The Demosthenes Club, a campus organization composed of genuine word muddlers, protested a recommendation by Dr. J. S. Green that the 1,000,000 stutterers in this country be exempted from military duty lest the strain emotionally disorganize them.

"In brief, we do not care to be excused from military service and know of no sound reason why we should be," they said.

Deer Interrupts Construction on Defense Project

GIG HARBOR, Wash. —(U.P.)— Chris Fosness, pile driver operator at a government munitions dock construction job here, said a deer swam out to the barge on which he was working 1,000 yards off shore and:

Permitted the crew to pull him aboard;

Accepted and ate with apparent relish bread, candy, chewing tobacco and cigarets;

Declined to leave the barge when the crew tired of feeding the animal;

Had to be driven off the barge and towed ashore and driven into the woods.

The deer, according to Fosness, was a young buck.

FISH SPEARING.

LANSING, Mich. —(U.P.)— The old Indian custom of spearing fish is increasing in Michigan.

The State Department of Conservation, which allows spearing on specially-designated lakes, reported issuance of 1,200 permits, at $1 each, and expected to issue 800 more before the season closes Dec. 31.

Spearing for cisco, whitefish and carp are permitted only by artificial light, and fishermen may not sell fish caught in that manner.

JURY TAMPERING

LANCASTER —(U.P.)— A secret indictment in a grand jury tampering investigation was returned by a special grand jury yesterday. The jury reported that three members of the regular October grand jury, dismissed during consideration of gambling charges here, were "improperly approached" but that "in only one instance was evidence sufficient to warrant indictment."

GOES TO PANAMA

BUCYRUS—Carl Eisinger, 116 East Center street, has accepted a position as government mechanic in the Panama Canal zone and has left for his new post. He will arrange to take his family there to live later.

Four were killed on last year's opening day and three were wounded.

One arrest was reported as an estimated 500,000 hunters searched for game. Harry Fudge, of Akron, charged with shooting hen pheasants in the Wood county game reserve, was lodged in the county jail at Bowling Green when he was unable to pay a $75 fine. Justice of the Peace E. E. Bailey said the Akron man's gun, license and three hen pheasants were confiscated.

Porter, a Republican, is a former Mansfield mayor. He was named clerk of the election board in 1930 and has handled the major part of the clerical work since then. Walter Underwood, a Democrat, is deputy clerk.

Since it is the custom of the board to appoint one representative of each party to the positions of clerk and deputy clerk, it was believed that Wolfe would be appointed to fill the vacancy without question. Wolfe was in charge of county Republican headquarters during the recent campaign.

"We are sorry to see Porter resign, and we don't think most people realize just how much work he did during his years of service with the board," George C. Balliet, chairman of the board, said today.

Don't Stop To See This Neckwear . . .
